What is PD?

Personal Development (PD) lessons are divided into the two key areas of: relationships education and health education. During these lessons, pupils will gain the knowledge, skills and understanding that they need to be happy and healthy and to manage their academic, personal and social lives in a positive way.

Why is PD an important subject?

- We learn how to keep ourselves safe
- We learn what respectful, safe and positive relationships look like.
- We know how and where to seek support (when needed).
- We learn to celebrate our differences and be tolerant of others.
- We know how to keep ourselves physically healthy.
- We learn strategies to support our mental well-being

How will learning PD help me?

These ultimate goal of PD lessons are to create pupils who:

- grow up to lead active, independent lives;
- look after their physical and emotional health;
- form positive and healthy relationships with others
- become informed, responsible citizens;
- are tolerant and respectful of each other.

What careers might a PD learner have?
